SAVAGE X FENTY RELEASES WORKOUT LINE

10 HOURS AGO IN STYLE
WORDS BY REBECCA DIEHL

Rihanna's lingerie line Savage X Fenty announces a lingerie-inspired workout line that is set to release on the Savage x Fenty website on November 9th. The renowned singer-turned-designer worked with Adam Selman to deliver a new style of workout clothes to make people feel sexy, free, and confident.

The inspiration for the collection is derived from lingerie pieces – filled with mesh, fishnet, and zippers to bring it to the vision that Rihanna and Selman wanted to push to change the way activewear is made

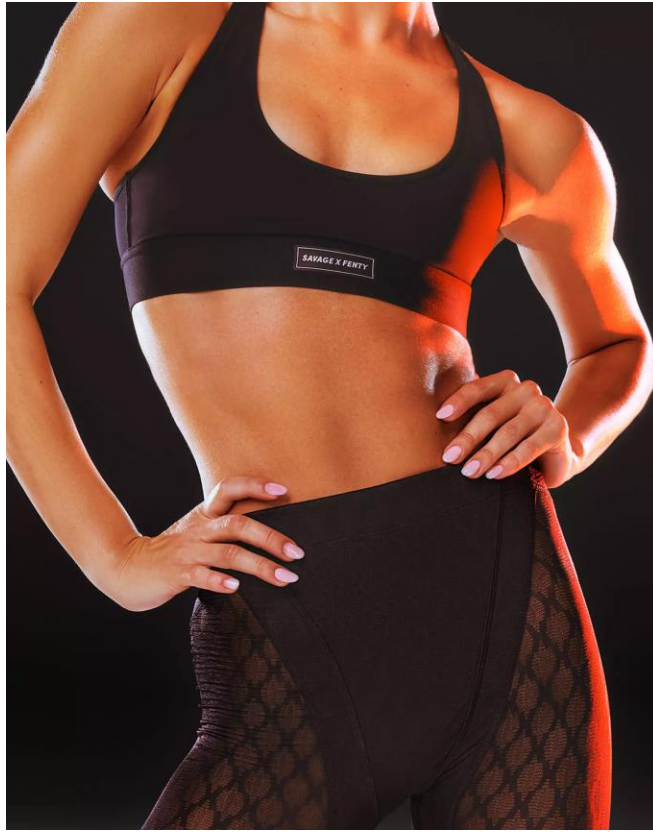

@ SAVAGE X FENTY

Selman and Rihanna have worked together previously before, and their goal was to push the boundaries that were defined in sportswear already. Selman carries out this vision brilliantly, as he has previously in other lines, such as The Valentine's day collection. He thinks outside of the box, collaborating with Rihanna to create the perfect line.

Rihanna's vision of the new line was to make "people feel sexy, y, carefree and powerful when they put these pieces on" as said in the press release. The pieces include many similar qualities to lingerie, but with more of a movable feel to them. The collection will come in sizes XS to 4X and consist of vibrant two-pieces, fishnet-like leggings, and low-cut pieces that are versatile throughout the day. The line features celebrities such as Avani Gregg and Georgia Alexander, and Martial artist Nelita Villezon to endorse the line through social media and advertisements.

They are set to be sold online and in stores on November 9th and shown in a Savage X Fenty show as well.
